PRAYER TO CARRY TODAY

TODAY'S DUST IS REAL. SO IS HIS KINDNESS.

Lord, You see all the dust I brought home, and Your kindness meets me anyway. Wash the day off. Let me come in.

"Loving kindness and truth go before your face."

MET AT THE DOOR

You're home, and the day is still on you. The word you shouldn't have said, the thing you meant to do and didn't, the tiredness you picked up just by getting through it. Part of you would rather not look at it at all.

Psalm 89:14 says loving kindness and truth go before God's face. In Hebrew, “go before” can also mean “come to meet”. Truth means He sees today as it really was; He doesn't pretend the dust isn't there. Kindness means that isn't where He stops. The night before the cross, Jesus washed His friends' feet (John 13), and the same Lord meets you at the end of this day, ready to wash it off.

Before bed, write down one true thing about today and one kindness you were shown in it. Read them both back to Him, then let the day go.

A PRAYER FOR TODAY

Lord, the day is still on me. You see every bit of the dust, and You're washing it off anyway. In Your kindness and truth, I can rest.
